Two additional redlines came in late on Friday.

I thought it would be useful to maintain the OMB redline as a separate document, so I haven't combined them. The OMB redline and the USDA redline are both attached. Additional USDA comments are included below.

General Comments from USDA/FSIS

Deliberative Process / Ex. 5

Subject: interagency comments received so far on the PFAS Management Plan

Everyone,

You are receiving this message because I understand you to be the points of contact for your respective HQ offices for the interagency review of the PFAS Management Plan. As you know, we are under a very tight timeline to respond to interagency comments, so I'm forwarding what I have received thus far. I should note that additional redline comments are expected from OMB later tonight, and we may also get comments from USDA. We expect to convene an internal EPA meeting just after the new year to discuss how to respond to the most critical comments.

The attached documents include comments received from DOD, HHS, NIH, DOL, VA, and NASA. HHS and NIH sent a redline, so most of their comments are in the attached redline version of the Plan. All the agencies sent additional comments, and those are compiled in a table in the other attached document. The table arrays comments in page order of the Management Plan. The general comments are at the top, and comments from DOD labeled with an "S" as part of the comment number were considered by DOD to be more science oriented and therefore more substantive. If you are looking to prioritize, I would start looking at those two categories of comments first.

I will forward along the OMB comments as soon as I get them; I'm anticipating another substantive redline.
